

BISBEE MINERS GET TOP WAGES

Comparison Between the Wages Paid at Bisbee and by Michigan Mines.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 12.—The high wage scale of the Warren district, $4.10 per day for miners and $3.85 for shovelers, which has been in effect since August 1, is particularly emphasized by a comparison with the Michigan scale recently announced for October 1.

In comparison with the $4.10 rate for miners, the highest rate for miners in Michigan is $3.75 per day, while the shovelers in Michigan are receiving but $3.50, compared with $3.85 received by shovelers in the Warren district.

There is even a greater difference in the wages of timbermen, those men in Michigan receiving but $1.25 per day, as against $1.50 in Arizona.

Calumet & Hecla Rate. The Calumet & Hecla Mining Co. of Michigan, recently announced an increase in wages for employees, of the parent company and subsidiaries, effective October 1.

The new schedule provides rates varying from 30 to 35 per cent, with the largest increase applying to employees now earning $1.50 and less a day. The increase affects approximately 10,000 men.

Under the new schedule, competent grade mine workers will receive a minimum rate of $1 per day, trammers $1.50, and experienced timbermen, $1.25. The minimum pay for any day laborer will be $1.50 per day, for trammers, $1.50, and experienced timbermen, $1.50.

The minimum rate of employees of other mines will be as follows: Miners, company account, $4.25; trammers, $4.50; shovelers, $3.85; first motion hoist, $1.75; hoisting engineers, geared motion, $1.50; firemen, $1.25; experienced timbermen, $1.50. Classes of mill labor will receive wages as follows: Firemen, $1.25; head runners, $1.50; head feeders, $1.25; rough and finishing boys, $1.25.

Arizona Mine Valuation Is Hoisted Again

Taxable Figure Has Been Raised 873 Percent Since 1912-13.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 12.—The assessed valuation of Arizona's producing mines for the fiscal year, 1918-1919, as fixed by the state tax commission, amounts to $121,962,534, an increase of more than $80,000,000 over the valuation of the preceding year. These figures may be taken as indicating the growth of the mining industry, but this in fact is but partially true. In their larger dimensions they show conclusively a state taxing power, and which apparently has become a fixed policy, to contribute a larger and ever increasing proportion of the revenues for the support of state and county governments.

The figures above quoted cover only the valuation of the producing mines in the state. To arrive at the total valuation of all properties under the head of the mining industry, there must be added the valuations for taxation placed upon non-producing mines and other properties, which are directly connected with those mines, including mill buildings, etc., which largely increase the total.

Increase of 873 Per Cent.

A striking presentation of figures representing the total valuation of the property of the mines and mining industry of Arizona for the six years from and including 1912-1913 to 1917-1918, in pyramid form, was given in a late number of the Arizona Taxpayers' magazine. Briefly, it shows that the valuation of mining property of all descriptions which in 1912-1913 was $14,155,894.49 had in 1917-1918 become $121,962,534. An increase since Arizona became a state of 873 per cent. In 1912-1913 the valuation for taxation of all mining property was $1.7 per cent of the total valuations of all property of every description in the state, while last year the mining industry was called upon to pay on 54 per cent of the total.

360 AMERICANS BELIEVED LOST

Sea Tragedy Claims Heavy Toll of Lives During Big Storm.

of the ship's company now were struggling in the water. The slim chance they might have had of getting ashore was very quickly dissipated by the wreckage from the ship of which they were clinging.

The experience related by William Richards typifies those of the others, but perhaps is a bit more sensational. He said:

Survivor Relates Experience.
"The fellows were fine. We knew that when the ship went fast on the rocks so far out, we would not have much chance to save our skins. But we all seemed determined to make a good try. A wave washed me off and I managed to get clear of the ship. The first man I recognized in the water was the captain, who was thrown overboard when the mast broke away. He was standing straight up, tramping water and looking about for something to grasp.

"There were three men on a mattress, riding in to shore as if they were enjoying life. But while I watched them, and wishing I were on it, too, a big roller swept them all off and banged them against the rocks.

Rafte Smashed to Pieces.
"I saw five or six others hanging on a bench. Some managed to climb on the tin raft lowered from the ship, but every raft I saw was smashed to pieces against the vessel or on the rocks.

"The noise of the wreckage grinding on the rocks was fierce, and any fellow who got into the wreckage was as good as gone. There were women of the boys floating around me, all dead, with nothing but their blue faces out of the water.

"A big roller carried me into a kind of a cleft, the rocks and I was thrown upon the side. I must have passed out. When I came to, I saw two British soldiers on the other side of the ravine. They threw me a rope, which I made fast, and crossed hand over hand."

Grateful to Islanders.
Joseph Follock said he believed many more of the soldiers would have been saved but for the steep banks of the cliffs. In one little cove, 25 bodies were counted. All the Americans voiced their deep gratitude to the islanders for the tender care they gave the men. The survivors were put to bed in private houses and were so well provided for in every way that no one wished to leave when the relief ship arrived.

Survivors' Names Cabled.
The loss of the Otranto's papers prevents the army authorities from learning the names of the missing. All the names of the survivors are being cabled to Washington, where they will be checked against the full list kept at the port from which the vessel sailed. In this way the list of dead will be ascertained. One officer of the U. S. M. C. A., named Brown, is among the missing.

Arrangements to Be Made.
Island of Islay, Scotland, Oct. 12.—Arrangements for the recovery of the Otranto will be made in the little church yard at Kilcormann in graves accommodating 25 bodies each.

As rapidly as the bodies can be assembled, they will be buried in an open field on the edge of a cliff directly overlooking the scene of the wreck.

Plan Memorial Service.
A memorial service will be held tomorrow at the church.

It will be conducted by the Rev. Ronald Grant, who with Mrs. Grant, were leaders in relief and rescue work. American and British officers, the Islay authorities and a large number of islanders will attend the ceremony. After the simple service has been read, a military salute will be fired over the graves.

Cadre To Transport Bodies.
Owing to the heavy surf and the difficulty of the coast, it may be many days before the bodies of all the victims are recovered. The task of conveying the dead over the rough ground from distant points to Kilcormann is proving a difficult problem. No four wheeled vehicles can be used and the bodies are being transported on carts.

Linking Up Forces In Russia Problem Allies Are Facing
London, Eng., Oct. 12.—What is the immediate military problem for the allies in Russia? It is to link up the two allied expeditionary forces into that troubled country so that there is uninterrupted communication between Vladivostok, on the Pacific, and Archangel and Murmansk, on the Arctic.

Something more than 150 miles now separates the two forces, the Czechoslovaks on the western portion of the Trans-Siberian railway, controlling the line to Samara, while the British and American forces from Archangel have progressed about ten miles southward.

Between these two allied forces are the Bolsheviks, said to be commanded by Trotsky in person. The Bolsheviks, by terrorism and bribery, only control a few cities and country immediately adjacent thereto, not having much power on the whole in the area now separating the two allied expeditions.

Trotsky's force in the upper Volga, while numbering 100,000 men, is believed to be equal to only about three divisions in actual fighting ability. It is not anticipated that they will be able to put much resistance against the allied forces coming from Vladivostok. Once Moscow is in allied control, joining up the communication lines with Archangel and Petchenga, events should move rapidly in favor of the servants of Russia.

Then supplies can be poured into the country from both the east and the west, and an unbearable resistance put up against German maneuvers. And, incidentally, much shipping will be saved.

HAS 15 PERCENT OF ITS MEN IN SERVICE OF U. S.
The local branch of the National Discount company, 204 North Kansas street, is displaying in its window a new service flag with 1812 stars. This represents a contribution, thus far, of more than 15 percent of the company's male employees to the fighting forces of Uncle Sam, about one-third of the company's organization consisting of women.

More of the company's manufacturing capacity is being devoted to government needs. A recent order called for 12,000,000 packages of hard bread for Pershing's men. This is the largest single order ever placed for crackers, said G. R. Smith, sales agent.
